

VICTORIA WILL ★ BORNE BACK

The first time that I met Victoria was at the 2014 Sundance Film Festival. I walked into her pop-up studio, which was small, filled with lights, and had a tiny area with a single stool to sit on. Victoria introduced herself, and immediately I felt a warm comfortable feeling, almost like I was coming home. I quickly introduced myself as she showed me some of the previous plates she had shot, the first being of Philip Seymour Hoffman. The image was remarkable, profound even.

PHOTOGRAPHY Unique and Unearthed

Most photos are just that, photos. But with the connection we had, I knew that this was more than just a photograph we were creating together. We have since moved on from photographer/subject to dear friends and collaborators. Victoria's grace and talent are evident in the images laid out in this book. She reaches into the souls of her subjects, discovering something unearthed and completely unique. She is a force that I cannot wait to work with again.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Lucas, your enormous heart and unconditional support allow me to thrive. Thank you for always encouraging me to take the next step. I love you.

My parents, thank you for always supporting my pursuits and encouraging me to follow this path.

Walker, you inspire me everyday. Thank you for giving each moment purpose.

Friends and colleagues, I have enormous gratitude to all the people who came to Sundance with me, especially Taylor and Dan who helped bring my vision to life but also made me laugh and feel supported every step of the way. And also Jolene and Geoffrey for being an integral part of the success of this project.

Lastly, this project would not have been possible without the willingness of my subjects to collaborate. It is with the utmost appreciation and gratitude that I want to thank everyone who allowed me the honor of photographing them.
